

Retrieval-Augmented Generation

Retrieval-Augmented Generation, or RAG, combines information retrieval with text generation. Before answering a question, a RAG system searches a document collection for passages relevant to the question. The retrieved passages become context for the language model.

Why RAG matters

RAG helps ground responses in a supplied knowledge base. It can reduce hallucinations and makes an answer easier to verify when the system shows its source document and page number.